[illegible] on the Burlington

Des Moines, September 7.—The fast mail on the C. B. & Q. railroad ran into the regular passenger train westward bound near Afton this afternoon at 2 [illegible] The passenger was delayed by a freight, and the fast mail failed to notice the signal to stop. The list of injured was chiefly confined to the sleeper on the rear end of the passenger train, as follows: Killed, infant child of Rev. A. E. Moser, Creston; injured, Mrs. M[illegible], head and arms badly cut, will probably die. Charles Cook of Glen S. Y., with wife and two [illegible] en route to Nebraska, were in the sleeper. The youngest son, four years old, was fearfully scalded, probably fatally. Other members of the family were not seriously hurt. I. J. Gray, Iowa, was horribly cut. A. [illegible] Fulkerson, Chillicothe, Wisconsin, spine injured. Jacob G[illegible], Cleveland, O., scalded; Miss Anna Morrill, Red Oak, Ia., face [illegible] Farmer scalded. Jas. A. Denver, September 7.—D. H. Hyman [illegible] has attorneys to day filed [illegible] in a suit in the United States [illegible] J. B. Wheeler, J. J. Hagerman, J. D. Mayer, the Aspen Mining and Smelting company and [illegible] other mine owners of Aspen, which [illegible] the apex question and [illegible] millions of dollars. He claims that the defendants in the case have located their claims on the extension of his lode and at a time long after the Belmont was located. The plaintiff brings suit to eject and also prays for an injunction to restrain defendants from bringing any suit against plaintiff in relation to any property relating to these properties until after this case has been settled by the courts.

Ohio's Vote.

Toledo, September 7.—The movement inaugurated in this section originated in northern Michigan. It first struck Sylvania village, ten miles north of Toledo. All tall trees were leveled, the lower limbs torn off. One farmer had fifty acres of timber all blown down. A brick school house at Michie was destroyed. The damage near Toledo has already been given. The track of the tornado was south by east. From here along the line of the Toledo and Ohio Central and the track of the storm can be followed as far as the eye can reach. It is from one to two hundred yards wide. No houses nor tall trees are standing in this track. Corn is scattered, hogs and barns unroofed for miles. At Waterville and other villages to the southward there is much injury done. The total damage will foot up many thousand dollars. No loss of life is reported, but many narrow escapes are narrated. The rumor that the new insane asylum here was destroyed is false. The roofs of a number of buildings were damaged and chimneys blown down, causing damage to the asylum to the extent of about $8,000 only. A Wabash train met the center of the storm and the smoke stack of the locomotive was carried off.

Tariff.

Washington, September 7.—Hon. W. L. Scott, of Pennsylvania, returned from his visit to the president at Oakview and was seen by a reporter of the associated press. When asked whether the tariff and reduction of revenue had been discussed by the president and himself, and Secretary Fairchild, and Mr. Carlisle and whether any bill had been agreed upon, he said that this subject as well as other public matters had been looked into and it was the opinion of all that there ought to be considerable reduction at the earliest possible date after the meeting of congress but the manner in which the reduction should be accomplished was considered only in a general way and no details were agreed upon.

An Est.

New York, September 7.—Advices to the associated press from Saratoga, Worcester, Binghamton and Norwich, New York, and Haverhill, Mass., report a violent wind storm accompanied by the heaviest rainfall in years. At Saratoga it ended with a fall of hail [illegible] of which measured an inch and a half in diameter. It resulted in great destruction to crops and forests. Houses were unroofed and many barns blown down while others were struck by lightning and burned. At Worcester, Amos Cornell was dashed against a barrel and killed. At Haverhill, several persons were partially paralyzed by a stroke of lightning.

We sincerely wish Gladstone was able to accept but we fear it will be hard to cover from the Irish question was [illegible] that the Gladstone sympathy [illegible] the representative English [illegible] We should hardly select Boston to represent England on such an occasion. We should hardly select Boston to represent the United States and an English celebration would be unjustifiable.

Too Much of Cleveland.

London, September 7.—The Times this morning asks whether it is to be expected that the American people should in some way signify beforehand its willingness to be bound by the decisions of the Osborne conversation.

Cleveland's Reply.

Denver, September 7.—Some weeks ago Mayor Ireland sent an invitation to President Cleveland asking him to visit Denver and Colorado. Today he received the following reply:

Executive Mansion,
Washington, Aug. 31, 1887.

Hon. William Scott Ireland, Mayor of Denver, Colo.:

My Dear Sir—I am in receipt of your letter of the 20th instant and thank you for the courtesy of your informal invitation to visit your city. Were it practicable for me to do so it would gratify me exceedingly to go to Denver during my contemplated trip to the west, but I cannot think of extending my journey to Colorado and must leave the pleasure of a visit to that state to some later time. Very truly yours,

Grover Cleveland.

Ohio.

Hamilton, September 7.—The opening meeting of the state campaign of the democratic party was held here this evening. The first speech was made by Hon. Thomas E. Powell, candidate for governor. Mr. Powell devoted nearly one third of his time to Governor Foraker and his administration. Speaking of what was demanded of a governor of Ohio, the third state in the union, he said Foraker's attack upon President Cleveland in his speech of acceptance was unworthy of one aspiring to such a high office, and for it he had received admonition at the hands of prominent citizens and from the press throughout the country. He claimed also that Governor Foraker had publicly insulted four hundred thousand democrats, voters of Ohio, by referring to them in a speech as "brigands" and "dirty democrats." Speaking of the rebellion he said Foraker by his conduct at the soldiers' reunion, and especially at Wheeling, had dishonored the best men of his own party. He said the people wanted a governor who would give honor to the war that ended in 1865, and peace to the peaceful pursuits of the present and future. He gave the facts upon which he based his claim that Cleveland's administration had done more for the Union than any republican administration. He said the party which had done so well with national affairs was the party to be trusted with the administration of state affairs.

Wisconsin, September 7.—Delegates to the state convention of the prohibition party continued to arrive in large numbers and 1000 delegates will participate in the deliberations. Some debate is looked for [illegible] platform planks notably one relating to woman suffrage.

Wisconsin, Mich., September 7.—The prohibitionist convention was held here today with 198 delegates present. W. H. Earle was nominated for governor. Dr. John Blackmer for lieutenant governor, Amos E. Hall for secretary of state, J. H. Ellis for state treasurer, E. M. Stowe for [illegible] and Allen Coffin for attorney general. The platform [illegible] the plan of bribing legislatures and murdering their [illegible], declares against licensing and local option; insists on the necessity of a third party; demands repeal of all license laws; [illegible] of a constitutional prohibitory amendment to the people and asks the legislature to submit the question of municipal suffrage to women.

[illegible]

Chicago, September 7.—A meeting of switchmen was held this morning in Packingtown. Union men were present from twenty-four railroads. A committee was appointed to await upon the officials of the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railway this afternoon and demand that two men discharged Monday be reinstated, also to demand of the Lake Shore that it employ no more non-union switchmen at the stock yards. Several non union switchmen have been employed there since the big strike, and the action of the men to day virtually resurrects the old trouble. It was unanimously resolved that if both requests are not granted a strike would be declared at 7 o'clock this evening. If this is done every road in the city will be involved.

Chicago, September 7.—No definite reply was received from the officials this evening, but the men decided to keep at work and send a committee around again to morrow.

[illegible]

Paterson, N. J., September 7.—Fire started this morning in Joseph Jackson's silk mills and part of the Grant locomotive works building, and soon communicated to every part of the building. Of the Grant works nothing remains but the erecting shop, foundry and part of the new machine shops. The loss is estimated at $150,000, and six hundred hands are thrown out of employment.

Boston, September 7.—The Maverick oil works at East Boston burned this morning. Five men lost their lives in the fire.

Newmarket, Ont., September 7.—The business portion of this place, including thirteen residences and about fifteen business houses, was destroyed by fire to day. Loss $250,000, insurance unknown.

A Great Trotting Match.

Chicago, September 7.—Jay-Eye-See and Patron are matched to trot at Washington park for $2000 a side. This race will take place either September 27 or October 2. It will be the grandest trotting event of the year. Jay Eye See's record is 2.10, that of Patron 2.14. The latter has beat the record for five year old stallions by almost four seconds.

Natural Gas at T[illegible]

Toledo, O., September 7.—To night was devoted to a natural gas jubilee in honor of the arrival in the city of the new fuel, it being piped from the Hancock and Wood co. field. Stand pipes were erected on the principal street corners, each bearing a roaring torch of flame as big as a hay stack, burning at a pressure of three hundred pounds to the square inch, which makes the city as light as day.

POWDERLY'S POLICY.

The Great Labor Chief Issues an Important Circular.

A Scheme for the Reorganization of His Order.

To be Submitted to the Coming General Assembly.

His Position on Present Issues Clearly Stated.

Circular from Powderly.

Philadelphia, September 7.—The Times to-morrow will say: General Master Workman Powderly yesterday issued a very important circular to order everywhere outlining the new policy which the commands should be made in the law of the order at the next general assembly. The new point is to give each trade the right to organize a national trade assembly under the jurisdiction of the general assembly, each national trade assembly to have executive control over the affairs of its trade as long as the constitution of the general assembly is not violated, no local assembly to enter upon a strike until all assemblies in the national trade assembly have voted on the question and have by a three fourths vote agreed to render assistance, nor assistance from the general order to be given until the case has been presented to the general executive board and by them submitted to the order at large, in case no assistance from the general order is required the general executive board is not to interfere. State territorial and provincial assemblies to be formed in every state territory and province in the jurisdiction of the order. In the circular Powderly also advises a general boycott of association to be taken up in the direct order.

[illegible]

Lewiston, September 7.—John Devlin, L. A. [illegible] and M. Workman Powderly, calling attention to criticisms which have been so freely made upon his policy as an official of the order, and asking certain questions touching the same. In reply Powderly declares that he is not a socialist. He says he owes allegiance to the Knights of Labor only, that he has done a man's part in protecting the order's interests that he has battled against allowing it to become the tool of any kite. He believed in excluding all foreigners brought to this country under contract to take the places of American workmen. This country could support all the good millions of human beings, but they must not all come at once.

Pastor Ryan's Protest.

Chicago, September 7.—The German Roman Catholic convention ended to day. The chief incident of the day's session consisted in a discussion of the Knights of Labor, protesting against the Minch resolutions against the Knights of Labor as unkind, unjust and [illegible] was not an enemy of Germans, and nothing in his career can so be construed unless his advice to working men to be sober and temperate can be so construed. The Knights of Labor, he said, are neither anarchists, socialists nor prohibitionists, but they are temperate. The secretary was instructed to inform Mr. Powderly that the resolutions had been rejected and to ask the state [illegible] made by Mr. Minch that he did not mean to attack the entire order of Knights of Labor.

[illegible]

Sheepshead Bay, N. Y., Sept. 7.—The weather was cloudy and the track fast. The event of the day was a match race between W. Graik's chestnut colt Elkwood and J. D. Morrissey's bay gelding Banburg, for $2000 a side and $1000 added by the Jockey club. The distance was one mile and a quarter. Elkwood was ridden by McLaughlin and carried 118 pounds. Banburg had Hamilton for his jockey and carried 105 pounds. They went away on even terms but Elkwood at once drew two lengths away and set the pace. Banburg gradually crawled up on him and was only half a length behind at the head of the stretch, and it was seen that Elkwood was as good as beaten when McLaughlin began to whip. Gradually apparently without effort, Banburg drew up, and his competitor at the extreme pole, and won without a touch of the whip by about a length. Time, 2.07¼.

One mile—Stuyvesant won, Favor second, Choctaw third. Time 1.40—never beaten in an actual race for two-year olds.

Five eighths mile—Fair Leland won, Speedwell second, Dancella third. Time 1.02.

One and three sixteenths miles, two starters. Joe Cotton won, Bouquet second. Time 2.00—beating the record by 14 seconds.

One and one eighth miles—Swift won, Brown Duke second, Florence M. third. Time 1.50.

Seven eighths mile—Little Minnie won, Patricia second, Barnie third. Time 1.28½.

Seven eighths mile—Roi d'Or won, Pat Diver second, Malvola third. Time 1.30.

Knight's Work.

Lexington, September 7.—The trades congress has adopted a resolution to reform the labor electoral association for the purpose of securing an increased labor representation in parliament. Another resolution demands land reform, beginning with such an imposition of the land taxes as will eventually leave the land in the possession of the people. The congress is now debating a motion in favor of the home rule movement. Speeches of delegates show strongly developed tendencies toward a state of socialism.

The M. E. Congress.

Washington, September 7.—At the opening of the medical congress President Davis called Prof. Durante of Rome to the chair as vice president from Italy to preside while his compatriot from Naples, Prof. Tarnovola, should read the paper of the day. Prof. Zemmola took the ground that yellow tendencies were in the direction of hypothesis and abstract theory, and urged a return to the fixed and conservative though perhaps lower methods of experimentation and exact scientific [illegible]

COLORADO COLLEGE.

A Successful Beginning of its Thirteenth Year.

An Increased Attendance and Brilliant Prospects.

Slight Modification in Preparatory Courses.

Improved Financial Condition—The Endowments.

Colorado college reopened its fall term [illegible] with a slightly increased attendance and the prospects of a successful year throughout the term are the brightest before. For some time the [illegible] of the board of trustees [illegible] that they can securely supply the [illegible] within a short time. To supply present needs and direct the board at its meeting last Monday passed the following:

Resolved, That Professor J. H. Kerr be [illegible] appointed to have supervision of the educational work of the college and to be chairman of the faculty for such term as he shall be able to give his attention to the work.

Professor Kerr has long been an earnest friend of the college and an active worker in its interest and was several years ago connected with the institution as chancellor of the [illegible]. The board [illegible] that in lieu of his supervision the college will continue to shape in the future as it has, under the able direction of Professor Strieby, in the past.

The present faculty were all connected with the college during its last term and, with slight alterations and rearrangements, have charge of the departments as heretofore. They are as follows:

Wilthrop D. Sheldon, professor of the Latin and Greek languages and literature.

Frank H. Loud, professor of mathematics and astronomy.

[illegible]

[illegible] and metallurgy.

[illegible] of political science and metaphysics.

George H. Stone, professor of geology and natural history.

Miss Eloise Wickard, professor of history and English literature.

Walter L. Wilder, professor of modern languages and history.

Professor George N. Marden will continue to work in the financial interest of the college. He is here at present but in a short time will return to the east to resume his labors.

Some slight changes have been made in the curriculum. A modification of the preparatory courses have been made in order to effect harmony with the line of study pursued in the lower schools, and one or two studies dropped when are covered by the latter.

The college courses are divided into four departments namely: [illegible] preparatory course, the literary preparatory course, the regular classical or academic course and the Cutler literary course. The latter is of three years in sciences, literature and modern languages, but does not include Latin, Greek, etc.

Besides this a special scientific course begins on the first of November. It will include assaying, surveying, geology, blowpipe and analytical chemistry. There will be a large increase of students in the department during the coming winter.

A course in book keeping has also been added to the preparatory course, optional on the classical and required in the literary. Heretofore this study has been taught in special night sessions. This addition has been made in deference to a general and growing demand for the study among preparatory students.

During the summer valuable additions have been made to the mineralogical cabinet including an extensive collection formerly owned by Rev. E. N. Barden of this city and the library has been considerably enlarged, principally through a donation of numerous and extensive works on the late rebellion. The gift of the late Mrs. Pearson, wife of Prof. A. C. Pearson.

A number of changes and improvements have been made in the college and grounds and by the aid of funds received from the musical society of the college, the chapel has been artistically and handsomely frescoed.

The financial condition of the college is better at present than for several years past and the institution is now virtually out of debt. This is owing largely to the efforts of Professor Marden. He has worked earnestly and unceasingly to lift the burden of debt which has hung over the institution and he has had better success than even the most sanguine had hoped for. It is wonderful the amount of interest that is manifested in Colorado college among cultured and wealthy people of the east, and its reputation is growing and its influence widening constantly.

The institution begins its thirteenth year under more favorable auspices than ever before and with particularly bright prospects of a successful term and a prosperous future. There have been times when its affairs looked dark and its prospects were anything but encouraging, but it has passed through and overcome all obstacles in the way of success and is now on a substantial and permanent footing. The endowments have reached nearly $50,000, in cash and in [illegible] through pledges. The officers and teachers of the institution are all zealous and enthusiastic in their labors for the success of the institution. There is not a cloud to mar the most [illegible] hopes of [illegible] the coming year.

Following is an extract from a private letter written by a member of Company A to a friend in this city, [illegible] by the latter for publication in the Gazette. It is dated Peaceably, September 1st.

Company A is the most thought of in the camp. Everybody says it is the most orderly company and the best drilled. We have a great crowd of scouts and cowboys around our fire every night. We sang the Gospel Hymns through several times. At 9 o'clock all fires are put out and the boys are in bed, and are up again at 6 a. m. We are now getting regular rations of flour, beef, mutton and potatoes, coffee and tea, and are getting along very nicely, but our horses are nearly starved. It is generally thought that we will break camp in a day or two and start home. It will be two days' march to Meeker, two more to Glenwood and one more to Gypsum, about 175 miles in all, then one and one half days by rail—just about a week in all. I should like to see what the papers have to say about the campaign. I expect the reports are about as near correct as usual. I see by a paper printed in Meeker that a man called Major Pray who is the biggest coward in the outfit and who was run out of camp for horse stealing, gets all the credit for hard fighting, etc. But you can be sure the papers will get the straight of it in a few days. * * * Yesterday we marched down into the reservation and scouted around a spell. I have a specimen I picked up there to show that we have been to Utah. The camp looks deserted this morning about half the troops and scouts having been ordered back to Meeker. The disabled horses were started back night before last and the wounded men this morning under guard of twenty men each. The regulars have gone to Meeker to escort General Crook over the trail to the reservation, so we figure on moving soon ourselves. Jackson.

[illegible] of the Charleston.

San Francisco, September 7.—Rapid progress is being made on the new steel cruiser Charleston at the ship yard of the Union iron works, and there seems to be no longer any doubt that she will be completed at the specified time. Her keel has been laid in the main ship slip and part of frame work of her sides is up. Steel plates are arriving daily from Pittsburg and the engines are nearly built. Though the Cramp company of Philadelphia has the advantage in the way of proximity to steel works and coal mines the Charleston is further advanced in construction than the Baltimore.

Poor's Railway Manual for 1907, which is just published, has a good many interesting statistics. The mileage in this country at the close of last year was 227,846, an increase over the preceding year of almost 3 per cent. The returns of the earnings of roads covering 225,147 miles have been received. The indebtedness and capital stock of these companies amount to $61,199,148,652. The earnings are 3.05 per cent. The percentage of dividends paid to the whole amount capital stock is 2.04 per cent. We have never kept track of this stock in Colorado, but if we have a large proportion of it, it is probably safe to say that the [illegible] of dividends in the whole country is [illegible] of what it should be.

The [illegible] of the Glenwood Post [illegible] the status of the [illegible] in the state [illegible] Mark [illegible] fixes its own price for cattle. The [illegible] is that some counties pay only [illegible] of the taxes paid by [illegible] Pueblo people. The Post says [illegible] of 4,000 white Park county cattle valued at $[illegible] is very little difference in the value of the cattle in the two [illegible] Weld county is likely to have [illegible] people. If the valuation in Pueblo county were made at the same rate [illegible] as in Weld county, it would [illegible] on a valuation of only [illegible]. If Weld county by on the other hand [illegible] Alamosa cattle at the rate as Park, she would [illegible] a state tax on the value of cattle of considerably over $900,000. This is [illegible] has been frequently noted in this paper. The decision of the [illegible] court some years ago prevented the [illegible] of equalization from equalizing [illegible] but this decision is already in violation of a section of the state constitution which forbids such inequalities. While the quality of the stock in various counties differs quite largely, it would be far more just if the state would fix an average valuation for all stock in the state. This would not be just on the counties that have poor stock, but it would work less injustice than the present plan. It must have the good effect to induce our stockmen to have a better grade of stock so that their proportion of taxes would be less. It would be looked at simply as a bounty for good stock, which on the whole is good political economy.

Senator Ingalls has written an article for the Forum on woman's suffrage. His arguments pro and con have nothing particularly original or fresh about them. But in behalf of an old argument he gives some rather striking statistics. It has been said that women will not improve the opportunity if given a right to vote. Senator Ingalls gives the following statistics of the voting of women in Massachusetts on school questions.

The women of Massachusetts have betrayed an insensibility and indifference to their enfranchisement which is shocking to the philanthropist and discouraging to the patron. There are 347 cities and towns in the state. In 170 of these, for 1879 to 1906 not one woman has ever registered or voted. In 200, or more than half, no woman has ever voted. In each of these a few have occasionally registered. By the state census of 1905 there were 442,616 male voters and 4,820 female voters and of these in 1906, there were 4219 who registered and 1911 who voted, or less than 50 per cent of those registered, and one in 232 of those who were eligible. The population in the interval from 1880 to 1905 increased nearly 200,000, while the female vote increased 234.

The only answer to that and [illegible] it is a good one is that no issues have been presented in the school elections in Massachusetts to call out the women voters. The tendency has been [illegible] women to put educated men of [illegible] character and good business ability [illegible]. Under these circumstances, women had little reason to go to the polls. It perhaps speaks well for them that they have not. They will not [illegible] polls to advance any personal [illegible] the simple purpose of [illegible] they would pull [illegible]

A Gi[illegible] at the British Museum.

Atlantic Monthly

I made but two brief visits to the British museum and I was coolly pushed out in order that he will have no excuse if he will following to action in behalf now not to see it. When he has spent hour at his disposal he then dig out the museum and wander among the books and its various objections. He will know is [illegible] that buzzes in one window and out another. If I were asked what I brought away from my visit I should say a tired feet. The lofty seats seems [illegible] uninviting but be comes help seeing them. The great round reading room with its [illegible] and [illegible] impressed me very much. I looked at one of the British Museum casts and photographs and curiosities had made in Egypt with the [illegible] features. I [illegible] but I was astonished [illegible] at the sacks of [illegible] which unclosed with the [illegible] Hebrew prophets. I did not [illegible] there at the sacks [illegible] on them by the American [illegible] did at the enterprise and [illegible] him brought them safely from the wounds under which they [illegible] the light of [illegible] the heart of a great city [illegible] I never thought [illegible] to see the Bible Negroes had [illegible] the tablets in which the history of Nineveh was recorded [illegible] world of history was found [illegible] by Layard, a great proportion [illegible] by Schliemann and the boundary extended by numerous explorers, some of whom are diligently at work at the present day. I feel very [illegible] of its revelations have been [illegible] I have been a tenant of the traveling residence which hoists so many [illegible] its recesses.

There is one less [illegible] to be got from a visit for an hour or two [illegible] the British museum namely the fathomless abyss of his own ignorance. One is almost ashamed of his little paltry hearthstone in the presence of the rushing and roaring torrent of Niagara. So if he has published a little book or two, collected a few fossils, or come [illegible] crushed by the vastness of the treasures in the library and the collection of the universe of knowledge.

I have shown how not to see the British museum, I will tell how to see it.

Take [illegible] garret. If you cannot afford [illegible] better—and pass all your days in the museum during the whole period of your natural life. At the [illegible] would have some faint conception of the contents, significance, and value of this great British institution, which is as nearly as any one spot the "mound vital" of human civilization [illegible] by the dagger of anarchy would [illegible] reign of chaos.

[illegible] Corn in Georgia.

[illegible] (Ga.) [illegible]

It is said the corn is so rank, dark and green on the Connasauga bottoms that [illegible] the sun is high in the heavens. An old farmer tells a good one about a [illegible] way in over of the dark forms of corn, and was utterly unable to extricate himself. An exploring party, with lanterns, went in search of him. When, at last, "the lost was found," he was discovered in the top of a tall cornstalk astraddle of an ear of corn, where he had been watching for the last twenty-four hours for the sun to rise.

MR. INCOL.

[Copyright, 1907, by Bobbs-Merrill, new novel, published by Bobbs-Merrill & Co. Indianapolis & Bell, New York.]

It was generally believed that Mr. Incol, Lenox Leigh would not marry again. He was a widower of two years' standing and of the [illegible] type of widowers. And he was very rich. He lived in New York and enjoyed a high social position. He was [illegible] years of age, but at the time [illegible] his acquaintance. He married [illegible] exceptionally happy, and he had had [illegible] and the two years following her death were passed in comparative solitude.

Mr. [illegible] gives us to understand as soon as we get acquainted with Mr. Incol that he had [illegible] and had a rather noted for vindictiveness of disposition. But later on, as we [illegible] more of him and find him always kind and considerate for others, we forget all about that unpleasant trait in his character. I would advise all who become acquainted with him to do [illegible] in mind.

Was there ever a widower who was inconsolable very long? Of course not. Nor did Nature intend to create any such. Mr. Incol found solitude irksome and began to go out a little. This stage of widowhood is known in society localities variously as "getting out" and "getting out." Literally, Mr. Incol "got out," and with a purpose. In the "getting out" process he frequently met Miss Maida Barbyte, a lady described as a delicious girl. At a reception one evening Mr. Incol watched his chance and asked Miss Barbyte a question which startled her. "Would she marry him? He told her he would call the next day for her answer, and [illegible]

CASTLE GARDEN, THE IMMIGRANTS' DOOR TO AMERICA

A Correspondent Tells of the Institution — Describes the Commissioners of Immigration, Who Have Been Brought Under the Heel of the Investigator.

[illegible] If you would see [illegible] with hopeful anticipation for the [illegible] of the Promised Land, the home [illegible] under the shadow of [illegible] always [illegible] by old [illegible] kept on spring [illegible]

INTERIOR OF CASTLE GARDEN

[illegible] with [illegible] during the voyage [illegible] their feet touched the [illegible] floors of a modern [illegible] steamship [illegible] For ten days they have been crowded together like cattle in a corral. Each one pays something near $20 for the passage from the old country to New York. And he gets it. But very little more. They are loaded on board ship on the other side and unloaded at Castle Garden, and that is all.

When they get here they are always [illegible] English, Scandinavian and Irish, Scandinavian and German, Bohemian and Pole, [illegible] and Greek and Hebrew—all with their faces hopefully set westward. They have come to a land of promise. But not all who start for this land [illegible] Then—nothing like this land [illegible] at Castle Garden.

A dapper young clerk walks in to [illegible] Jackson's office and shouts a few words through the telephone. This is what he said on a recent occasion: "Hello! Hello! Is that you, Cap'n? Take the down [illegible] Alfriatic, [illegible] 53. Thought to be [illegible] On the 23d [illegible] sailed overland and went to the bottom of the deep blue sea.

"Hello! I say sir, what [illegible] to the bottom of the deep blue sea."

"What?"

"Nothing but one small box. That's all that's left of Kate. Tell that C[illegible] by the lepper young [illegible] and so on."

WAITING FOR TRANSPORTATION.

In Washington's early days Castle Garden was a fort. It was called Fort William Henry. Later the name was changed to Fort Clinton. In 1850 the fort came into private hands. Along in the 50s it was used as a [illegible] and it was then first called Castle Garden. In 1882 it was the [illegible] of a small ball given to the Marquis Lafayette, and in 1884 a reception was given to President Arthur within its walls.

When P. T. Barnum brought the Swedish nightingale, Jenny Lind, to America, she sang in Castle Garden, then a concert hall. The seats for the opening performance on Sept. 11, 1850, were sold at auction and brought enormous prices, the first being given for one seat by a New York hatter who wanted to advertise himself. In May, 1855, the board of commissioners of emigration was created and the Garden was given over to them as a convenient and suitable place for immigrants.

In 1876 Castle Garden was burned. A few months after the present structure was built on the ruins of the old fort. The [illegible] remains, and one can see in the [illegible] formerly used for [illegible] a museum of [illegible] miscellany of [illegible] and [illegible].

BOTTLE-HOUSE

The immigrants are taken off from the steamships in barges and tenders. Some of them have overturnable boxes, without seats, which are commonly called bottle-houses. To the left of the entrance and as he walks up the principal hall in Castle Garden is the scale room. This is used for baggage, and the [illegible] offices of the railroad companies are located here. There are [illegible] of every description and [illegible] boxes, bedding, bound together by stout cords, and valises. Mixed in with this homogeneous mass, in every conceivable shape and form, lounging, sitting, sleeping, are the owners. Fathers and mothers, [illegible] and babies, sisters and [illegible] and young. During a recent visit to Castle Garden, I noted in the [illegible]

A [illegible] walking with her feet [illegible] for a pillow.

A [illegible] with a pair of loose [illegible] that look like the puffed sleeves of a [illegible] lady's dress.

A [illegible] German girl, eating away for dear life at a long German sausage as big as her [illegible].

A [illegible] boy, with a winter [illegible] and straw hat.

A [illegible] boy from England, with a complexion of [illegible] that set so tightly to his [illegible].

A [illegible] Irish girl, with a bright, clear face and flaxen hair, nicely [illegible] in the [illegible].

A young [illegible] and his sweetheart [illegible] glances at each other.

From the scale room into Castle Garden proper is a short step. Directly in the center of the [illegible] which [illegible] Turkish [illegible] Here [illegible] exchanged for [illegible] current the lowest [illegible]. Due [illegible] back of the [illegible] office where tickets [illegible] to any part of the country.

When the immigrants come into the Garden from the ship their trunks are taken and if there is any small for them they get it [illegible] Clerks are then arranged and they are then shipped off to the railroad [illegible] stations. There is no need for them to remain in the city unless they wish to go for boarding houses and hotels. Novelty has worn off and runners are allowed to enter the Garden to [illegible] those who have selected and examined the baggage. Outside the Garden is a freshman company [illegible] can be obtained here at prices regulated by the commissioners, and [illegible] stocks up in different parts of Castle Garden. According to recent testimony in the investigation of the commissioners these prices are pretty high. The immigrant gets many [illegible] in Castle Garden which he would undoubtedly have to buy [illegible] if he went out into the city. Instances are cited of a Swedish girl who had slept and shopped after a fashion, and her average daily expenses for a week would probably not be more than five cents. The luxuries of Castle Garden are more dear of helping and eating than anything else. The kitchen [illegible] of the hotel kitchen and the food is as good as any commercial restaurant, but the prices are dear, and they relish their coarse food as keenly as they would if it were cooked by a French chef.

Castle Garden, the immigrant's door-way to America, is an interesting place to visit.

The Midland's Exhibit.

Denver News continues the following [illegible] to the exhibit now being prepared by the Colorado Midland Railway company for the Denver exposition:

Believing that all that is necessary to induce people to come and interest them in Colorado is to show to them the resources and products of the state the Colorado Midland company has gone to no small expense in providing for an exhibit at the Denver exposition, which will show the state's resources in an attractive and advantageous manner.

Owing to the very many applications for space for exhibits and the limited amount of space the exposition management had to dispose of, the company concluded to erect a pavilion for the display of its [illegible] and it speaks well for getting the materials in shape for the exposition. With the materials they have it is possible to make a handsome and creditable show, and the energy and thoroughness with which the company does everything it undertakes is guarantee sufficient that their exhibit will be not only attractive but of much value to the whole state.

In the several departments of the pavilion there will be shown the agricultural products and [illegible] of minerals and ores, of which Colorado has the greatest diversity in character of any state or territory in the [illegible] and generous samples of bituminous and coking coals and iron ores at the [illegible] along and contiguous to the line of the Midland.

Indeed, the Midland will show to the many strangers who visit the exposition that Colorado [illegible] a diversity of [illegible] as to be able to [illegible] capital and [illegible] an almost [illegible] field for investment.

The tourist and invalid will also find in the display the road to [illegible] and health, for the mineral waters with medicinal qualities will be there for every one to see, and the beautiful and charming spots in the Rockies will be faithfully pictured and the road to them pointed out.

The whole exhibit will be artistically and beautifully arranged, and will be a credit to the state and the exhibitors.

Cavalry Horses.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Most company officers try to get their men mounted on horses which are all of the same color and in every regiment we have troops of black, gray, roan, bay and sorrel horses. Bay horses are the most numerous and consequently you will find several troops of this color in each regiment. Blacks and grays are not so easy to get, and it is almost impossible to get a roan troop. Capt. Wood, of the Fourth cavalry, has the finest troop in the service, the horses are all magnificent iron grays and it has taken him a long time to get them together. This regiment is proud of this troop, and the officers always give way to Capt. Wood when a fine gray horse is purchased, so he can select it for his company. When a horse is first bought for the service he is designated by a number branded on his foot, but as this soon wears off, he is allowed to be named by the soldier to whom he is assigned. Some troops have a uniform system of naming their horses, [illegible] according to B troop of the Fourth cavalry have names beginning with the letter B. A great deal of attention is given to the cavalry horses, they are carefully groomed and regularly fed on the very best hay and grain which the government can procure. The horses are retained in service just as long as they remain in sound and in good condition. When they begin to fail in strength, become blind or are crippled, they are condemned by a board of army officers and are sold at auction to the highest bidders. Some horses remain in the service for many years. I have known of a horse which was perfectly sound after twenty years service in one troop. Not a few horses are condemned soon after being bought for although they have the appearance of being all right, a short test shows that they have not the endurance necessary for hard work. In a long campaign animals suffer greatly at times for forage and water, but in time of peace the raw dry horse may be said to occupy as comfortable a position as any reasonable horse could desire.

Curious Facts in Natural History.

The children of the blackest Africans are born whitish. In a month they become pale yellow, in a year brown, at four dirty black, at six or seven glossy black.

A physiologist has launched a theory that woman's fondness for scents is due to her defective sense of smell. It was a matter of evolution. In the early stages of his physical and intellectual development man had to employ his nose in the pursuit of game while in women engaged in domestic work the sense of smell was not exercised. It is that women owing to their defective sense of smell, can endure a perfume which is quite overpowering to men.

In a letter to Albert Chandler of Cincinnati, Seth Green, the noted fish raiser of New York, says that in his belief "the way eels breed is yet to be discovered. There have been a great many theories advanced in regard to the matter and certain scientific gentlemen claimed to have solved the problem, but I have seen nothing yet to convince me positively as to how they breed. Eels dropped in fresh water will live and grow but will never breed. This is my opinion [illegible] upon many years of observation."

[illegible] FOR READING ROOM

[illegible] AVE. [illegible] from [illegible]

Mr. D. [illegible] Bell and wife have returned from a trip to Canada.

But a few of the [illegible] are confined in the city jail awaiting [illegible].

Mr. Frank Cornello, a merchant of [illegible], was in the city yesterday.

The sidewalk in front of the county buildings on Kiowa street is being filled in and graded.

Miss Jessie Field has returned to Clinton, Mo., to continue her studies at the academy in that city.

Mr. Harry LeB. Willis departed yesterday for Newburyport, Mass. He will be gone at two or three weeks.

Mr. A. H. Cossman goes to Denver today to attend a meeting of the executive committee of the State Press Association.

October 10th will be El Paso county day at the Denver exposition. Special rates will be given by the railroads on that day.

Mr. J. A. Cochran, of Colorado City, has purchased the Colorado City News, and will assume editorial management of the paper.

A dirtbilled sand hill crane was caught by a boy on Walsatch avenue yesterday. It had both legs broken, probably from a gun shot.

Undelivered telegrams remain at the Western Union office for Edwin S. Edwards or Edmond, Edgar T. Ensign and George Cary.

The Masonic grand lodge meets in Denver on September 20th to 23d inclusive. A number of delegates from this city will be in attendance.

Twenty-five street mail boxes have been received by Postmaster Lover, and they will be placed on lamp posts throughout the city in a few days.

The National Editorial association will arrive at Manitou over the Midland from Leadville on the 19th inst., and will be entertained in this city on the 20th.

Hon. George H. White, of Michigan, and E. C. Bassick, the discoverer of the great Bassick mine, guests of Dr. Reynolds, leave on the Thunderbolt for the east today.

A very heavy rain fell yesterday evening on the Divide caused a washout on the Rio Grande between Monument and Palmer Lake, and the late train from Denver was delayed several hours.

The members of Pike's Peak Lodge, No. 29 I. O. O. F. are requested to meet at the lodge room on Friday at 12.30 p. m. to attend the funeral of the late L. C. Davis. By order of C. T. Lath[illegible], N. G.

All the available passenger cars on the Midland are being accumulated at Leadville to be used in the excursion of the Knights of Pythias to Robinson's canon, on Friday, Oct. 11th. It is estimated that 2,000 people will participate.

An unavoidable delay has been encountered in finishing the new county building on Kiowa street. There is an [illegible] at work now, however, and the building will be ready for occupancy in a few days.

[illegible] through the city on the 3.45 Rio Grande train yesterday afternoon. They were accompanied by a brass band, which discoursed music during their stop at the depot.

Willie Sweet has returned to his home in this city from his course at Swarthmore college, near Philadelphia. He was met at Denver by his father, Mr. J. H. Sweet, mother of Mrs. Channing Sweet, and Mr. H. H. Stokes, who accompanied him as far as Manitou where he will remain a few days.

Ex-United States Senator Jonathan Harlan of Iowa, arrived in the city yesterday. The senator is interested in property here. His son, William Harlan, brother of Mrs. Henry Lawton, is in this city and is now prominent.

The contract for the new [illegible] of Fourth ward school building has been awarded to Dennis [illegible]. Work will probably be commenced early next week, several lots on the property of the Denver & Rio Grande railway having already been secured for the purpose.

A man named Pat Sweeny was turned over to Under Sheriff Jackson by Colorado City authorities yesterday for committing to the county jail. He had been [illegible] charged on the complaint of grand larceny, in forging a check for $[illegible] by Alfred Green, and bonds were in the sum of $[illegible] to assure the appearance of the grand jury.

Several young men of this city who are unable to attend day school or college, have signified their willingness to join a night school if such institution were established. Professor Byington is interesting himself in the matter, and will do what he can toward the opening of such a school, with a competent teacher in charge.

The Grand Army excursion over the Midland to Leadville, on the 14th instant, promises to be the event of the season in the excursion line. A very large number have already signified their intention of attending, and the low rate of $6 for the round trip will be sure to attract a large crowd. A stop of two nights will be allowed in Leadville.

The old Pike's Peak Dry Goods Emporium re-opened yesterday morning. The business will hereafter be styled the Edward Ferris Dry Goods Co., with Edward Ferris president, and George W. Walker business manager. Read carefully their advertisement on the third page. They have a long list of special bargains, and will continue in the future, as in the past, to supply the latest styles in dry goods at the lowest prices.

Mr. F. E. Dow has placed in the window of his clothing store a remarkable gas lamp. It consists of a cluster of jets revolving within a large concave and beveled reflector. Surmounting the jets are buttonhole bouquets, and their counterpart is multiplied on the reflector, leaning a gorgeous wreath of rich hued flowers. The effect is beautiful and dazzling, and the novelty attracts the admiring attention of all who pass the window.

Father Byrne, who a few days ago resigned from the Catholic pastorate in this city, will leave next week for California. The effort to induce Father Bender, a former priest of the parish to return and occupy the vacant pulpit has proved successful. He has resigned charge of the St. Elizabeth's German Catholic church in West Denver and will be here as soon as his affairs can be arranged. Father Bender is very popular among the Catholics here.

Alderman Lawton at the last meeting of the city council drew attention to the fact that Colorado Springs had acquired a reputation for having more runaways than any town of its size in the country. This is in a measure due to the scarcity of suitable hitching posts in the business portions of the city, and a provision to increase their number should be made. For an instance, along the east side of Tejon street from the GAZETTE corner north to G. S. Barnes & Son's hardware store on the alley, there is not one hitching post, and in scarcely any portion of the city are there enough to supply the needs.

The opera house will be filled to overflowing to a large audience on Saturday night. "Old Lavender" is one of the finest pieces ever produced and has been a great success in the east. Prior to its engagement in New York city the Evening News says: "The opening of Harrigan's Park theatre in a comparatively new house—a gem of beauty and comfort—was a gala event. At 8 o'clock every seat in the house was sold, only standing room being available, and many well-known first-night habitues stood and looked at the jolly throngs in the windows of the elegant and capacious foyer, regretting that pressing engagements prevented the purchase of seats at any price. The play Mr. Harrigan and Old Lavender' were the most [illegible] pabulum on which the audience [illegible] posed feasting his fancy. The play has a strong moral. His story [illegible] with a fidelity to nature that place Mr. Harrigan far above the production which he has heretofore occupied [illegible]. As actor he rose more [illegible] himself, he presented a character [illegible] to the most [illegible] Mr. Dave Braham, excellent himself in his musical compositions in Old Lavender. They are more [illegible] more than tones. [illegible] Mr. Braham's [illegible] of the Italian [illegible] from [illegible]."

Antonio Arcese, A. L. Schneider, Charles G. W. Hodges, E. B. Lewis, Topeka, Kas.; J. R. Gordon, Denver; W. P. Brady, Cedar Rapids, Ia.; W. C. Bradbury, Denver; W. F. Belden, Aspen; Mrs. H. C. Hodges, Miss Hodges, Miss Virginia Hodges, Detroit; George A. Rowley, St. Louis; George T. Herbert and wife, Leavenworth; Colo.; A. M. Worley, Wilkesbarre, Pa.; A. E. Seleckler, Omaha.
